New Book, Awakening Leadership, Invites Everyone to Step into Leadership Roles

Each one of us is necessary to lead humanity into a new era of true equality and prosperity.

DAYTON, Ohio — “You were born to lead,” says a new book by the CEO of the What Would Love Do Foundation. In her latest non-fiction work, set to release June 15, 2015 Dayton Literary Peace Prize nominated author, Christine Horner, unveils a New Leadership Blueprint that names sustainability as the new all-inclusive compass that redefines morality, values, the way we care for one another and the planet.

Its central theme, one of an interconnected world, states we all are equally vital and necessary to the well-being of each other and the planet. “Humanity is presently struggling because all of our social systems are rooted in the erroneous belief that we are separate from each other and our home planet. As more people wake up, they realize that we are in this together, and that we must work hand-in-hand to finally begin to thrive,” says Horner.

In the new leadership paradigm, competition is out, and cooperation is in. In addition to a primer on how to use critical thinking skills to break through gridlock, mindfulness is also presented as a technique for removing personal judgment surrounding self-limiting beliefs.

“Self-acceptance is key to stepping into your role as a leader. We tend to think of leaders in the traditional sense of being part of an exclusive club. No more. Every moment is an opportunity for each of us to use our highest potential to build a better world, regardless of our age or our station in life. Everything is described is easily enough for a child to understand.”

It is through reconnection that one discovers a renewed sense of purpose. Humanity can end the survivalist infighting in order to realize peace, so that we can finally begin to thrive.

Horner is dedicated to the advancement of human consciousness and awakening the miraculous within you. A portion of the proceeds benefits the What Would Love Do Foundation.

SHORT SYNOPSIS

Human advancement requires the realization that each one of us has an essential role to fulfill to lead humanity into a new era of true equality and prosperity. In Awakening Leadership, Horner describes how mindfulness reconnects us to the Unified Field of Creation, opening the door to our infinite nature and our life's purpose.

FULL SYNOPSIS

Hardwired into your DNA is the ability to lead. Human advancement requires the realization that each one of us has an essential role to fulfill to lead humanity into a new era of true equality and prosperity. Through mindfulness we reconnect to the Unified Field of Creation, opening the door to our infinite nature and our life's purpose.

Harmoniously converging, unity consciousness is awakened and the potential contained in our life is unharnessed, our renewed passion for life. Your potency unleashed, you automatically become a leader. In truth, there is never a moment when you are not living your life's purpose. If you are already an established leader within the traditional leadership framework, your understanding of what leadership is and does just might flip on its head.

The old leadership paradigm may have served humanity during our "survival years," but we've gone well beyond that. If we are to finally begin to thrive, the self-created shackles, and the dream we are living, need to come to an end so that a new dream can take flight. Except, this time, it's your dream . . .

This is the challenge that life offers us in every moment. Many people simply re-act habitually based on culture and conditioning, without any thought. Others believe they don't have a choice. Most don't understand the power residing within them that makes all things possible.

Until one learns critical thinking skills are just the beginning, that choice is really choiceless, and that we are powerful beyond measure, we remain in a state of servitude, abdicating our authority to others. It's not your occupation that makes you a leader, it's how you "occupy" life. A true leader makes use of every available tool in every moment without waiting on another day or for someone else.

We must evolve for our continued survival. United we stand, divided we fall applies to more than just nationalism; it's the very fabric of all of life. Each one of us contributes to the unique tapestry that is this planet, our planet a thread in the tapestry of the Universe. Leadership must decentralize and be embodied by each person right where you stand extending to the lives that you touch.

If Earth's prime directive is oneness, its universal guiding principle is sustainability. In the New Leadership Blueprint, sustainability becomes the all-inclusive compass that redefines morality, values, the way we care for one another and the planet.

And this is where you come in. There is no one exactly like you in the entire Universe. No one has your unique talent, gifts, and point of view. If you were not necessary to the whole of Creation, you would not be here. You are just as vital to the progress of the human race and all of Creation as is any important historical figure you can think of. You were born to lead.

Transcending boundaries, Awakening Leadership is an illuminating "human" guide that will inspire you to immediately begin living your life on purpose toward building a better world. It's your time to thrive!
